About CAHRMA

The Canadian Aboriginal Human Resources Management Association (CAHRMA) is a non-profit organization supporting Human Resource professionals working for or providing professional Human Resource services to Aboriginal communities. Our vision is to be a driving force to build better work environments for the Aboriginal communities to facilitate profitable and sustainable companies and offer a source to the association, to Aboriginal peoples across Canada, providing HR practitioners with similar issues while building relationships to address the challenges and strengthen their communities. The Association will offer a venue for networking, connections and education that blends Human Resource practice with Aboriginal culture to assist Aboriginal peoples establishing their business practices in the Canadian community.
